Description • Unsaved changes

As a registered user, I expect to log in with my e-mail and password so that the system can authenticate me.

The user cannot navigate to the Log In page directly from the main page. This section can be accessed from any other page besides the home page, by clicking the My Account button located at the top.

Acceptance Criteria:

- As a registered user, if the user go to the log in page and enter e-mail and password and clicks on Log in, then the data associated to the user should be accessible
- If the e-mail and/or password entered are incorrect, then authentication fails with an error message stating that the username or password is wrong
- A valid e-mail domain must be entered
- An encrypted version of the password
- After a number of failed authentications within a time frame from the user, the website should prevent login attempts for a specified amount of time and also warn the user about this fact.
